Editors' Preface

These two volumes, the seventh and eighth, covering the Social and Behavioral Sciences, complete the Eleventh Edition of AMERICAN MEN OF SCIENCE. It was only in the Ninth Edition, published in 1956, that the Social and Behavioral Sciences were issued as a separate volume on the advice of a special joint committee of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council. Some 18,000 names appeared in the Ninth Edition and more than 22,000 in the Tenth Edition, published in 1962. With approximately 30,000 in the Eleventh Edition, the prophecy voiced by the late Jaques Cattell, editor of AMERICAN MEN OF SCIENCE for over thirty-five years, has been fulfilled. In his preface to the 1956 edition, he expressed his belief that, as the importance of this biographical work came to the attention of leaders in the Social and Behavioral Sciences, the coverage would increase.

The pattern established for the Tenth Edition has been repeated in the Eleventh with publication of the Physical and Biological Sciences Section first, followed immediately by the Social and Behavioral Sciences. As before, the biographical information has been arranged alphabetically within each section, but the ever increasing number of scientists necessitated expansion from four to six volumes in the Physical and Biological Sciences and from one to two volumes in the Social and Behavioral. Over 160,000 entries are included in all eight volumes, compared to 118,000 in the Tenth Edition.

The criteria for inclusion in AMERICAN MEN OF SCIENCE remain the same:

1. Achievement, by reason of experience and training, of a stature in scientific work at least equivalent to that associated with the doctorate degree, coupled with presently continued activity in such work; or
2. Research activity of high quality in science as evidenced by publication in reputable scientific journals; or, for those whose work cannot be published because of governmental or commercial or industrial security, research activity of high quality in science as evidenced by the judgment of the individual's peers among his immediate co-workers; or
3. Attainment of a position of substantial responsibility requiring scientific training and experience of approximately the extent described for (1) and (2).

As with the previous editions, special thanks go to the Social Science Research Council for its informal but invaluable guidance and to the representatives of the key national associations who form the distinguished Advisory Committee for the Social and Behavioral Sciences:

Dr. Arthur H. Brayfield, American Psychological Association; Dr. Charles Frantz, American Anthropological Association, Dr. Norton Ginsburg, Association of American Geographers; Dr. Evron M. Kirkpatrick, American Political Science Association; Donald C. Riley, American Statistical Association; Dr. M. H. Trytten, National Academy of Sciences; Dr. E. H. Volkart, American Sociological Association; Dr. Harold F. Williamson, American Economic Association; Dr. Dael Wolfle, American Association for the Advancement of Science.

George M. McCorkle, president of The Jaques Cattell Press, has worked closely with the Advisory Committee and the staff in the present compilation.

Needless to say, without the cooperation and advice of the vast number of individuals and organizations interested in science, such a compilation as AMERICAN MEN OF SCIENCE would not be possible, and acknowledgment is gratefully extended to the individual scientists, to the Advisory Committee, to all scientific societies, to the universities and colleges, and to the research laboratories of the United States and Canada for their assistance in the continuance of this great enterprise.

The many valuable suggestions received during compilation of the present edition are being carefully considered in future planning. The first to be instituted has been a new Supplementary Service to meet the need for a continual flow of up-to-date information concerning American scientists. Four Supplements to the Physical and Biological Sciences Section have been published, and two more are scheduled: the fifth to be published in 1969 and the sixth in 1970. A Supplement to the Social and Behavioral Sciences Section is planned for publication within the next two years.

This edition has been compiled in Tempe, Arizona, where the editorial offices were moved in 1958 prior to the death of Jaques Cattell. The history of AMERICAN MEN OF SCIENCE goes back to 1906 when a manuscript reference list was published for the Carnegie Institution of Washington by James McKeen Cattell. From this foundation the project has grown to its present scope. The R. R. Bowker Company, which had been associated with Mr. Cattell in the publication of the Ninth Edition, bought The Jaques Cattell Press in 1961 from the estate and continues to serve as publisher, maintaining the same close liaison with cooperating organizations and holding to the same high standards which have characterized this "saga of American science" for over sixty years.

Every effort has been made to avoid errors in the listings—with the certain knowledge that some have escaped us. The great majority of entries have been edited from information received in questionnaires. Biographies of those who did not reply to requests for revisions have been repeated when there was reasonable assumption of continuance at the same location; failing this, a simple reference to the previous edition has been made. When a new address or new affiliation came to our attention from a reliable source, this information has been added to the reference. We have used our best efforts to include the material submitted within the scope of the established format, but have no legal responsibility for errors in entries or accidental omissions.

Elizabeth Cattell, Vice-President and Resident
Manager, The Jaques Cattell Press.

Abbreviations

American Men of Science has tried to economize on punctuation since the first edition published in 1906, and has used only one punctuation mark at any point. Also, since many societies have the same initials, it has been found necessary to use abbreviations in place of initial letters, for their titles. These abbreviations are generally self-explanatory, or can be found in the following list:
